Free up time & budget

We've worked with schools and MATS for 30 years and understand how you tick.

Print queries and uptime is the last thing you want to be thinking about, so we've refined our service to take the hassle away. So, you can free up time and budget for the more important things that improve your reputation and the learning environment.

As part of their consultation process, Arena discovered that they could reduce costs and vastly improve and modernise our service experience.

Take the hassle out of print

We believe print and related services should deliver beyond expectations so that you no longer have to deal with any unnecessary distractions.

The Arena Team works hard to ensure print is the last thing you need to think about. You get to take care of the important stuff while we keep your print capability on track and give you more including centralised remote management, one click budget control, proactive maintenance and more...

I'm impressed with your staff. The engineers seem so knowledgeable and prepared to get stuck in and fix any problems we have. That's a great relief as I can trust them to get the job done.

Direct Award to fast-track procurement

We're proud that customers recognise that we're a standout organisation that they want to partner with and become part of the team.

To minimise the impact of the procurement process, many have chosen to use the direct award route.

For me the differentiator was the values of the Arena team members we were dealing with, and the fact that they've delivered on their promises.
